KICAS_adm / December 02, 2014 08:19PM

Authority structure of the site

Dear KICAS Members,

We receive some response that some members are not able to edit their profile, nor can they post messages, so that they guess the members' authority is not full.

The authority structure of this site is very simple. Moderator manages memberships and approve posts on official pages including "Event" and "Panels." The rest part of the site, all members share the same authority. Members can edit profiles, post/reply messages, use "private communication" (including person to person and forming a communication group), manage your own account. Please try to play with the site bravely.

Should you find any problem or come up with some advices, please kindly revert, here or in the "private communications".

Sincerely yours,

KICAS_adm